married the daughter of Mr. Riley Briggs, of Osggody Hall, York; they have four children, the eldest of whom, Mr. John Basil Robinson, is a keen rider to hounds, and was blooded by Mr. C. B. E. Wright on December 16th, 1891. About the same time he was renting a small place in Northamptonshire, and had five years with the Pytchley; he then returned to Snaith, and besides following the Badsworth, kept his own pack of harriers, which were known as the Snaith Harriers, for three years. Then followed eight years with the Rufford and Lord Galway's, from East Markham Hall, Newark, until 1901, when he came to Cheltenham. Other hounds he has followed at various times include the Sinnington, Bedale, Bramham Moor, Holderness, Lord Fitzwilliam's, and the Burton. Among his favourite horses we must mention the chestnut gelding Comfort, by Fenian, dam by Knave of Hearts (in 1902, in his eleventh season, Mr. Robinson hunted him fifty days, and the year following, forty-nine days); Punch, by Elvington Wildfire, dam by Prick Willows; and April Fool, by the Duchess of Newcastle's Tom Cribb, dam by Farnese, granddam by Escort.

Mrs. Robinson used to follow the Woodland Pytchley, the Rufford, and Lord Galway's, and her youngest son, six years of age, follows hounds.

Born at Charville, county Cork, Ireland, in 1859, Dr. EDWARD JAMES HOLMES SULLIVAN, the son of Dr. Edward Sullivan, of Maiden Hall, was educated at Queen's College, Cork, and took his degree at Queen's University. Taking up his residence at Barnsley, Yorkshire, he subsequently started a practice at South Kirby, near Wakefield. Beginning to hunt in Ireland as a youngster, when he migrated to Yorkshire he became a follower of the Badsworth, and has since hunted with them regularly. Well known and popular in the Badsworth country, he is a straight rider, and yields to none in his love of the sport. Some riding in point-to-point and other races has fallen to his share; he also played polo, and is very fond of shooting. Though a busy man he never, if possible, foregoes the chance of a day's hunting.

THE RIGHT HON. ANTHONY MILD MAY JULIAN FANE, THIRTEENTH EARL OF WESTMORLAND, is the only surviving son of the twelfth Earl and Lady Adelaide Ida Curzon, daughter of the first Earl Howe. Born on August 16th, 1859, he was educated at Eton, and in 1892 married Lady Sybil M. St. Clair Erskine, daughter of the fourth Earl of Rosslyn. Earl started a pack of staghounds at Apethorpe Hall, in Northamptonshire, which were maintained for four years and hunted by himself. Blooded by George Carter, of the Fitzwilliam, his Lordship was a staunch supporter of this Hunt until 1905, when the Apethorpe Estate was sold. During his four years at Eton, 1874-78, he ran with the Eton Beagles, and became so keen on harehunting that he started a small pack of eight couples at home, which he kept for four years. On leaving school, he continued his education with Mr. M. C. Knight, in Wiltshire, near whom was an old-established pack of beagles, to which he whipped-in for a season, and acted as Master for two. In 1880 he returned to Apethorpe, and for twenty-five years hunted regularly with the Fitzwilliam, the Oakley, and the Woodland Pychley. His country seat is now Charlston Hall, in the Badsworth country.

Lady Westmorland is also extremely fond of hunting, and their son, born in 1893, inherits the love of sport. He was blooded to the Fitzwilliam in 1902 by William Barnard, and when at Osborne, whipped-in to the Osborne College Bassetounds, presented by Lord Conyngham; he is now whip to the Royal Naval College Beagles at Dartmouth.

The best of Lord Westmorland's many good horses were, he considers, Ben, by Ben Webster, who carried him from 1884 to 1889, and who was an extraordinarily good timber jumper; Bonser, who ran second in the Fitzwilliam Point-to-Point; and Black Sam.

He is especially keen about fishing, and has done remarkably well on the Spey and the Slaney; he is also very fond of yachting, shooting, and golf, and played cricket in the 'eighties for Northamptonshire. He is colonel commanding the 3rd Battalion Special Reserve Northampton Regiment; J.P. for Northamptonshire, a member of the Marlborough and Pratt's, and, when in town, lives at 58, Queen Anne Street.
